Dear Lem:

Upon my return from vacation today I was distressed to learn that you had been ill and probably would not be in the office for a little while. I believe that our "tentatives" have arrived. We shall certainly miss you in making the necessary decisions in connection with them.

However, the purpose of this note is not to bother you with our business problems but to express my sincere concern at your illness and to extend my best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Sincerely,

/s/

L. K. White
